CONGRESSIONAL

In the Signte, on the 1970, Mr. "-. An. -a fig. After heading the Resolutions-he made a few remarks upon the duty which he conceived devolved upon him in consequence of their rechanged but-in conformity with his instructions he should oppose its passage at this session, and introduce a motion for its postponement to the next session. Mr. Buchanan said

"I can conceive of extreme cases, in which, on questions of more expediency, an honorable man might leel himself degraded in even becoming a gent to give the vote of his state. No person of any party with whom I have conversed, considers the present to be such a case; and have confident in my own opinion-upon this subject by the example of the Senator from Tennessee, Mr. Grundy. - I shall, therefore obey my instructions honestly and in good faith; and like him on every occasion of proposed amendments, shall give such a vote as a fair and honourable opponent of the bill ought, in Juy judgment, to give.

The Senate then proceeded to the order of the day. The Sub-Treasury Bill. Mr. Clay being entitled to the floor made a speech in opposition to the Bill in answer to Calhoun. He went into a history of the destructive experiments of the late administration, upon the Currency and the Banks, which he declared to have for their end and only object the establishment of a great Government or Treasury Rank, to which the prevent Sub-Treasury project is the leading step.

Mr. Clay said "that he rejoiced that the he) with the declaration and warm expressions of public opinion which every where I see around me, rising in clouds,

"The "Key Stone State," continued Mr. C. "God bless her, has sent in her instructions, and one of her sons has this very day borne the message of his State to your I-gislative Halls. If other Senators, would obey instructions, or vote according to the distates of their consciences, and threw party saide for patriotisin, the bill not only could not pass the Senate, but would be defeated by a vote of 35 to 17 And why should not honourable Senators obey their instructions, when professing so much faith in the doctrine of instruction. Clay alluded to the instructions from New York revolution in the politics of the country. world, he said, had not seen before or since half aush a monderful revolution.

. Speaking of Mr. Rives' Bill Mr. Clay said, I shall vote for it as a substitute to the Bill before the Senate, upon the principle that if a physician held two medicines out before me, the one in each hand, and one a deadly poison. and the other a harmless anodyne, he should take the mild and harmless medicine in preference to the poison. I shall vote for it as preferable to the Bill of the drawer at the White House or the Bill of the endorser from South Carolina, or the Chancellor of the Exchequer from New York.

The conclusion of Mr. Clay's speech was an elequent appeal to the patriotism of the Senate. It was surpastingly beautiful and was felt by -bert auditor.

In the House of Papresentatives - Resolutions mare in order and the day was spent in the introduction of a vast number of them upon "h) I t every concervable subject of legislation.

- Atkinson, - Feb. 22, 1838.

Fishermen, pensionera, widows and orphans have had this worthless paper forced upon them just before the the failure of the bank. Such transactions as these are enough to open the eyes of the blind and to cause the deaf to hear. When Mr. Van Buren finds the scheme of his "illustrious predecessor!" have failed, what do he and his condittors think of next? Why they think of pulling down the treasury building which cost about 200,000 dollars and building strong vaults to heard up the gold and silver in; and very probably entrust it to the care of another set of defaulters to run away with. They may succeed in forcing the Sub-Treasury scheme upon us, but the people throughout the United States are awake to the subject and will eventually give these experimenters a furlough, if not a discharge. Their prints may raise the cry of federalism, but such a miserable subterfuge will avail them nothing. They have destroyed a sound currency and given us an unsound one. They have been the the means of chartering a host of State Banks, and when they find it is bad policy they accuse the minority of doing it. Such conduct makes Sub-Treasury Bill could not become a law of me think of the man who stole the ghods and Congresse, and my heart is made glad, (said then ran off crying stop thief!! Such kind of abuse is in perfect unison with the slang of its most illustrious predecessor, the Post. He like wise calls Mr. Kent a minerity Governor. As to the truth of this assertion I leave others to decide. Why does the editor of the Democrat feel so much alarmed at the doctrines of the Governor's Address? Is it because he recommends gold and silver for members of Congress and Commonwealth bills for poor fishermen? No. He says a sound currency for the whole people. Is it because he thinks Congress ought to do something to relieve the community, and restore again a sound currency and the regular operations of commercial intercourse? Yes that appears to be one cause of his alarm.

It cannot be the Governor's views on the North Eastein boundary that gives him uncasiness, for they please every body, who are whige enough to be lovers of a free government.

The continuance of the bounty on wheat I think the gentleman must be pleased with, as it will-have a tendency to increase the quantity of grain another year and serve to make it a little cheaper. Therefore he will be enabled to buy bread for his family (if he has one)a little cheap er than usual. In true Yankee style, I have asked a good many questions, and answered them mysclf: but you will please to excuse them, as I know Yours.

We recommend the following report, and the resolutions on the same subject, adopted at the meeting of Boston merchants, to the consideration of our readers: .

THE WAY TO RESUME SPECIE PAY-MENTS. (From_a Report in the Massachusette Legisla "ture, try P. P. F. Degrand.) The great problem to be solved is "how to re sume Species Payments without producing great distress." We also know that distress of the most aggravated character cannot be a joided, if curtailment is resorted to ; and we also know that curtailment was tried, in vain, in England, from 1797 to 1622, at seven distinct periods, the history of which was, at each period, cuitail-ment, distress insufferable, turning out the ministry, and then, (in despair of obtaining the object,) a fresh increase of Loan; and some of the most distinguished men were actually disposed to look upon resumption of specie payments as an impresibility.

At last, the resumption of specie payments, by a great mass of the banks in the United States, demonstrated to the world, that this great result could be obtained, and stimulated the proud ilse to fresh exertion. From the latter end of 1815, to the end of 1818, the Bank of England reduced the amount of "Bills and Notes under Discount' tremenduously, say, from 16 million pounds sterling, to 24 million pounds sterling; and yet did not resume and could not resume. Frightened at the misery they had produced, they shrunk aghast, and again increased the Loan, and gave up the pursuit. They had overlooked the great American invention, by which our banks were enabled to require.

Soon after the prace of 1815, the banks in New York, Philadelphia, and Battimore, resolved to resume, and tried their hand at curtheir steps. Curtailment produced, as usual, its row evening. natural offspring, viz: general distress, and, of very reverse of the first and indispensable elements of resumption of specie payments, viz : privilege. miet and ease and comfort and their n offspring, viz: general and generous confidence. These are the natural result of a gentle, general increase of Loan. The discovery (by American genius) of this undeniable truth, led the way to the resumption of specie payments. It was not done by curtailment. It was done by the very reverse of it, viz: by the agreement of the then new Bank of the United States, with the local banks, to discount 2 millions in New York, 2 millions in Philadelphia, and 1 million in Baltimore, and to take by the hand, all the local matitutions and austrin them, shoulder to shoulder. Thus it was that a force, foreign to the then common course of trade, was brought in to the additional strength to the local banks, who, one and all, declared that, without it, they would not, and could not undertake to resume specie payments. And this is the true secret. Viz: non-curtail. ment, a gentle increase of Loan, and a Force in aboution to that in Existence, to inspire a tune of general confidence, in each and every one of the public, and in each and every one of the banks; and it was by this, that, for the first time in the history of the world, sucress crowned the attempt to resume specie payments by a of Banks. Baffied in 1815, '16 and '17, in their efforts to remune specie payments, by curtailment, the Bank of England and the British Government afresh sought the causes of success on this continent. Americans who happened to be in London were consulted by the ministry; and, in the result, the true cause was discovered, viz : that success was due to the aid of a fresh force. a force foreign to the then existence in leads and-twa goodh incre a of loan. The new ale ments were secordingly brought by Government; (a forest foreign to trade) and by a generalincrease of lean. A general kind feeling and tone of eculidents and pr spirity being thus created, the bank was enabled (at last without an effort) to trempe, even helives the live

MAINE LEGISLATURE. IN SENATE.

THURSDAY, Peb. 23-Orders, petitions, and reports disposed of in

The Bill for the repeal of the small bill law came from the House non-concurred, and the Senste insisted and appointed as conferees Messrs. Greene, Woodman, and Heagan:

The Order introduced yesterday by Mr. Dument was called up by Mr. Soule, and Mr. Ham. proposed to amend by inserting for present, after the word 'late, so as to read the late or present Executive department. Mr. Dumont said he would accept the modification.

Mr. Boutelle said, since the gratleman (Mr. Ham) had vesterday called upon his colleague for his reasons for the introduction of the order, he (Mr. B.) would like to hear the grounds of the amendment; if the gentleman would saythat he believed or even suspected that there had been any malpractices in the present Executive department, he would willingly go for the amendment,

Mr. Ham replied, that he had no evidence that there had been any hands in the past or present Executive, but he thought if investigalions were to be made at all, it would be proper to cover the whole ground and ferret out all corruptions.

Mr. Boutelle made some remarks in reply, and the amendment was adopted and the order passed. Read once and to-morrow assigned ... Bill to ncrease the number of Justices of the Court of Common Pleas and of the Supreme Court to 4 each; to incorporate the Baugor sacred music. society; Bill to establish the County of Piscata: quis, (composed of a part of Somerset and Penotiscut;) Bill additional to incorporate the Penobacot rail road Co.; Bill respecting mortgages and equities of redemption; to give towin and parishes the right of the trustee process; grantng leave to the Penobscot Bank to surrender its charter.

Passed to be rengrossed Bill to cede to the U. S. the jurisdiction of certain lots of land to build light houses; also to incorporate the Methodist Society at Bangor; Resolve in tavor of Penobscot Tribe of Indians; Resolve repealing the resolve to pay members of the legislature in American gold.
IN THE HOUSE.

THURSDAY, Feb 22: On motion of Mr. J. T. Paine of Sandford, a call of the House was made, and 72 members answered to their names. A quorum was obtained at quarter past 9.

The Committee on the Judiciary reported a bill concerning the att chinest of real estate, which was rend once and lale on the table, and 300 copies order d to be printed.

Committee on State Langs enquire into the condition of the bridge on the Canada Road over Moose River, and into the expediency of approprinting a sum of money for rebuilding the wame. The bill to incorporate the Kennebec Compa ny was taken up, and the question was on passing the same to be engrossed.

Mr. LEVERSELLER was opposed to passing this bill. Here were five applications for differ ent acts of incorporation from the same individuals. They had already got a monopoly on the Kennebec River and he was opposed to grantog them any more power. He moved that the bill he indefinitely postponed. Mr. CHAPLIN moved the year and have or this motion, and they were ordered.

Mesers, Voce J. T. Paine, Sheldon, Hamlin.

Parris, and White strongly opposed the motion, and advocated the passage of the bill.

A former legislature had granted a charter to these individuals to build a dain across the Ken nebec at Augusta, they had gone on under great discouragements, and completed it at an immense expense. It was the noblest monument of individual enterprise in the Otste... But it would be valueless unless the priviledge was now allowed them of using it for manufacturing purposes, and they contended that a former Legislature having by a large majority held out inqueements to erect the dam, the faith of the Brate was in a measure pledged to grant all the facilities for improving the water power that could consistently be given. It was for the interest and hanor of the State to encourage affects enterprises, which had a direct tendency to pro mole its prosperity to invite the investment of foreign capital and furnish empoyment to our citizens. They trusted the motion to postpone indefinitely would not prevail, but that the bill would pres by a meanimous vote.

The question was taken an pratporing indef initely and decided by year and nays in the negative nays, 154; year Mesers. Murble, of Camberland, I evenseller and O'Brien of Lincoln, Frost, of Oxford, and Lermond of Waldo.

Mr. Holmes was on the Geological Committee last year, and the report was not referred to them, nor was it seen by him until after it we printed He thought we had better conform to former usage, unless there was a groud mass for departing from it. He hoped the motion of the gentleman from Augusta would prevail. Mr. Hamlin was happy to hear the gentlemin from Winthrup allude to former usage, and he would inquire why all the meranges of the Eiequitive had been communicated to the House this session, instead of the Senate? Mr. Tenney asked if it was a fact that the Governor had made all his communications is the House

Mr. Hamlin did not intend to say Att, bu nearly all.

The motion was then put, and decided in the affirmative, year 93, nays 52. Mr. Hamlin moved that 2000 additional copies be printed. The report was an important one, and should be distributed among the people.

Mr Parria moved the printing of 5000 additional copies, and enforced at some length the importance of spreading before the community the valuable information contained in the report it was all important to the agricultural interest and 10,000 copies would not be too many. After some desultory discussion, the motion of Mr. Pairis prevailed.
